Seminary Graduates
15 Ministers Friday;
Dr. Alleman Speaks

At the first commencement exercises in the new Seminary chapel, dedicated with impressive rites Wednesday afternoon, the Gettysburg Lutheran Theological Seminary graduated a class of 15 young ministers, Friday evening.

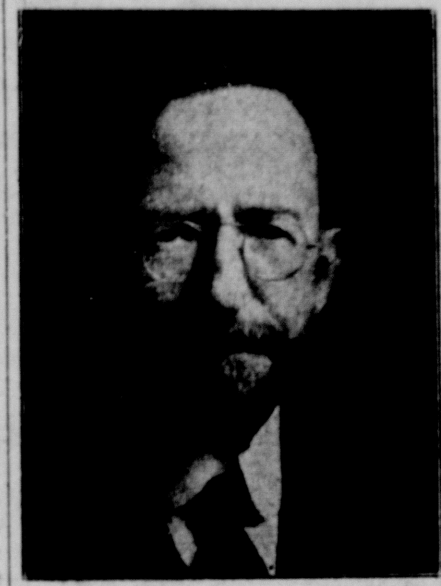

The graduation sermon was delivered by Dr. Herbert C. Alleman, professor emeritus at the Seminary, and the diplomas were distributed by Dr. Abdel Ross Wentz, Seminary president, before a gathering of church leaders, relatives and friends of the class that filled the chapel building.

In addition to conferring degrees of bachelor of divinity upon the 15 seniors, Doctor Wentz also conferred the same degree upon 11 post graduate students of the Seminary. The degree of master of sacred theology was conferred upon two candidates. Candidates were presented by Dr. Raymond T. Stamm, secretary of the Seminary faculty.

Ministers Are Told to Preach "Jesus Christ"

Education alone is not a guaranty of a successful ministry, Dr. Herbert C. Alleman, professor emeritus at the Seminary, told members of the graduating class at the Seminary Friday evening in the new chapel.

Reminding them that they need not seek theories upon which to preach nor be in need of guidance in their ministry, Doctor Alleman directed them to their Bibles with the commission "Preach Jesus Christ."

A condensation of his address follows:

Luke 4: 20, "And he closed the book."

He closed the book. It was the simple and obvious thing to do. Every Sabbath day the reader of the Lessons of the Synagogue, when he had come to the end of his lesson, closed the book. In doing so Jesus put followed the example of countless readers before him. But something happened in the synagogue at Nazareth that day that had never happened before. The book had been closed before, but it had not been closed like that. It had been closed by reverent hands, not by the Master's hands, never with such words as Jesus spoke, never with such claims as Jesus made. In fact, the book would never be opened again as it had been opened before.

Why did Jesus close the book? First, He closed the book because (Continued on Page Six)

HOLDERS OF "X" CARDS HAVE TO PROVE REASONS

"All holders of 'X' gasoline ration cards should return those cards to their local rationing board unless they are clearly within the eligibility classifications—and receive the appropriate 'B' card thereby relieving themselves of the responsibility of determining their own classification with the attendant penalties if they cannot substantiate their eligibility for 'X' cards."

That announcement was made today by Donald P. McPherson, Jr., Esq., chairman of the Adams county rationing board, after a conference Friday afternoon with an OPA representative.

Mr. McPherson's statement follows:

"In going over the applications for 'X' cards as the supplies are returned to the county rationing board office, it is obvious that many who have received 'X' cards are not entitled to them.

Some Misunderstanding
"This is due, evidently to a misunderstanding of the regulations. An OPA official from Harrisburg in the local office Friday afternoon explained the conditions under which 'X' and 'B' cards can be issued properly.

"If the car is used for going to and from their place of employment, they are eligible for a 'B' card. Likewise a federal, state or local government official may not travel from his home to the office and return on an 'X' card. He must not apply for an 'X' card unless he will use the car exclusively for official business. Defense workers are eligible only for 'B' cards.

"Furthermore farmers using a passenger car to take their products to town and return with feed and fertilizer, whether such a passenger car is used to haul a trailer or not, are eligible only for 'B' cards and should return their 'X' cards to the local rationing office.

"Grocers using passenger cars to make deliveries to their customers are eligible only for 'B' cards. Few passenger cars are eligible for 'X' cards.

Affects Tourists
"A holder of a 'B' card who in pursuit of or to or from a gainful occupation needs more gasoline than his 'B' card will give him may obtain additional gasoline upon filing an application for additional cards and upon approval by the local rationing board.

"Farmers and others who are required to hold rationing cards and who own bulk tanks for use in vehicles must cancel the units on their rationing cards for the amount of gasoline removed from the tank for passenger car use on May 15 and thereafter.

"Dealers are urged to apply at the local rationing board for their set of instructions on gasoline rationing. Their attention is called to the fact that gasoline may not be sold to tourists coming into the county from an unrestricted area unless such tourists have a ration card.

Thanks Workers
"All of us are in this war. The soldiers and sailors are gallantly upholding the honor and tradition of our country. We on the home front must give them our whole support. Let's not chisel for a gallon of gas."

Mr. McPherson declared the teachers of Adams county "have earned the gratitude of the citizens of the community" by their generous response to the calls upon their patriotism. High school principals were thanked for helping in the distribution of supplies and in assembling reports and the offices of the county superintendent of schools and Lloyd C. Keefe, superintendent of the local public schools, also were thanked for "valuable assistance."

BREAKS HIP IN CAR COLLISION

An aged motorist suffered a broken hip and a woman was less seriously hurt in an auto collision Friday evening about 7:15 o'clock at the intersection of Carlisle street and Lincoln avenue. Both cars involved were badly damaged and had to be towed from the scene.

J. A. Leitzel, 86, Lock Haven, an occupant of a car operated by Malcolm Myers, Beech Creek, Clinton county, is a patient in the Warner hospital with a fracture of the left hip. Because of his advanced age his condition is regarded as serious. Mr. Leitzel was taken to the hospital in the Adams county ambulance.

Mrs. John J. Baltzley, Gettysburg R. 4, wife of the operator of the second machine, was taken to the hospital by Dr. William P. McKnight but was allowed to leave after receiving treatment for a knee injury. It was first feared her leg had been broken in the collision. A child in the Myers car was treated for shock.

Borough Officer Charles W. Culp investigated the accident and said today he will file a charge of passing a red traffic light against Baltzley who was driving west on Lincoln avenue when the crash occurred. The Myers car was headed north on Carlisle street.

LACK OF GAS AND WAR MAY SLASH VOTING

With the forthcoming primary election running a poor third with the war and gasoline rationing in the race for public interest, politicians are gloomy about the prospect for a good turnout of voters next Tuesday. They are predicting that the vote will be under 40 per cent of the registered 17,663, possibly not more than 30 per cent.

The stiff competition for the attention of Mr. and Mrs. Voter that the candidates and party workers face this year may result in the lightest primary vote in a gubernatorial election in many years.

A further complication that is expected to have a tendency to keep voters from the polls is the gasoline rationing order that went into effect Friday. Just how voters will feel about using their precious gallons of fuel to motor to the voting places is a question politicians are wondering about.

State Offices At Stake

One campaign manager here said Thursday he has been advising prospective "vote haulers" to lay in a supply of gasoline to carry them through election day activities.

Republicans and Democrats alike will help other members of their party in the state nominate candidates for the offices of governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of internal affairs, judges of the state Supreme and Superior courts, a representative-at-large in Congress, a district congressional representative, a state assemblyman and a member of the state party committees.

The Republicans also will name their county chairman and that contest between John H. Basehor and William I. Shields is attracting as much interest as any to be decided Tuesday. Democrats choose their county chairman in a post-primary convention.

7 for Governor

For governor the Democrats must choose between five candidates: F. Clair Ross of Butler county; Luther Harr, Philadelphia; James J. Regan, Jr., Montgomery county; Ralph H. Smith, Pittsburgh, and Clarence P. Bowers, Reading.

Republicans will make their choice between United States Senator James J. Davis and General Edward Martin for governor.

For lieutenant governor the Democrats have two candidates—Ramsey S. Black, Harrisburg, and Elmer Kilroy, Philadelphia. The Republican candidates are John C. Bell. Continued on Page 7

Here And There
News Collected At Random

When a man becomes a good newspaper man it is seldom that he applies himself or becomes proficient in any other art. The reason is that he devotes all, or practically all of his time to his profession . . . and it is a profession . . . the great and good Fourth Estate.

However, there are exceptions to every rule. In the newspaper business there are few exceptions. One of these exceptions is a native of Gettysburg, a former city editor of The Gettysburg Times, an alumnus of Gettysburg college, now a member of the board of trustees of his alma mater. He is C. William "Bill" Duncan, back in to attend the 25th reunion of his Gettysburg college graduating class.

"Bill" is a newspaper man by instinct. He has an inherent love of the game. The smell of printer's ink is a fragrant aroma to his nostrils. He'll never get it out of his system. He writes a free and easy style . . . and he can "cover" any one of the editorial fields . . . sports, drama, feature or spot news. Bill's closest newspaper friends will tell you that he would have been a top-notch sports writer.

But Bill stuck to straight news and then branched into the columnist field at which he became adept. His column "Now, My Idea Is This" had a large following and his interviews of world celebrities gained him a vast audience of readers.

The presentations were made by Millard Glatfelter, vice president of Temple university and chairman of the alumni committee on awards.

GRADS RETURN FOR COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT

With gasoline rationing showing a marked cut in alumni registrations, Gettysburg college commencement week-end activities were in full swing today on the campus with the alumni collation and class reunions highlighting today's program.

The annual baccalaureate service will be held Sunday morning at 10:45 o'clock in the Majestic theatre with Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen, college alumnus and member of the faculty of the Gettysburg Lutheran Theological Seminary, delivering the sermon. Doctor Rasmussen's daughter, Mary Libb, is a member of the senior class.

110 to Get Diplomas

One hundred and ten seniors are to receive diplomas at the 110th commencement exercises to be held Monday morning at 10 o'clock. If the weather permits the exercises will be conducted in front of the Beachem portico on the north side of Old Dorm. Otherwise the graduation ceremony will take place in the Majestic theatre. Dr. Joseph Port Newton, Philadelphia, will deliver the address.

Week-end activities began Friday with a meeting of the executive committee of the board of trustees and the annual dinner meeting Friday evening of the alumni council in Huber hall. Seventy-five attended. The old grads discussed "Gettysburg's Contribution in the National Emergency." Fraternities observed open house Friday evening.

Reception Tonight

This morning the board of trustees of the college held its annual spring meeting and alumni gathered for the noon collation in the Eddie Plank Memorial gymnasium. Members of the graduating class were collation guests.

A special service honoring college grads in the armed services is set for 2 o'clock. Cancellation of the Gettysburg-Juniata baseball game, scheduled for this afternoon, was announced Friday.

NAZIS UNABLE TO STOP HARD RUSSIAN DRIVE

BY HENRY C. CASSIDY

Moscow, May 16 (AP)—The Red Army's power drive on Kharkov was reported today to be crushing stubborn German resistance in one after another of the strongly defended communities on the outskirts of that Ukrainian industrial center, pivot of Hitler's invasion of southern Russia.

(Unconfirmed advices reaching London said that shock troops had cracked the inner defense line of Kharkov itself in two points and had battled their way into the northeastern suburbs of the town while a wide flanking action, 70 miles south of Kharkov, threatened the communications network for the whole of the enemy's southern front.)

The Germans were putting up a desperate fight for Kharkov, counter-attacking with tanks brought from the city and with air support in certain sectors and benefiting at the same time by rain and mud.

(The British radio said that "within the past 36 hours rain and floods have been added to the obstacles in the way of the Russians, but the Soviet sappers, working 24 hours on end, are said to be rapidly restoring roads, bridges and advanced airfields.")

(Recapture of Kharkov or success of the flanking drive to the south of the city may nullify German gains on the Kerch peninsula of the Crimea and possibly would force the Germans to swing their line back west from the Taganrog anchor, on the sea of Azov.)

Surprise Attack

Allied Headquarters, Australia, May 16 (AP)—Swooping down from the skies in a sudden attack which apparently caught the Japanese napping, Allied bombers rained destruction yesterday on the enemy air base at Lae, northeastern New Guinea, General MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

"All the bombs dropped on the runway and building area, and large fires were started," a communique said.

The raid followed up two Allied assaults on the Japanese base at Rabaul, New Britain, which lies almost 400 miles to the east.

Allied headquarters made no mention of further Japanese raids on Port Moresby, Allied outpost in southern New Guinea, which has been attacked almost daily of late.

Vichy Rejects U. S. Demands

Vichy, Unoccupied France, May 16 (AP)—Pierre Laval, chief of government, announced today that Vichy had informed Washington officially that it would not accept the United States' conditions regarding the status of Martinique.

Laval told the press that a note sent to Washington had declared the American conditions to be a "grave blow to French sovereignty" over France's West Indies possessions.

"France will not relinquish any of her rights over Martinique, no matter what happens," the pro-Axis chief of government told correspondents.

Exchange Prisoners Reach Lisbon Port

Lisbon, May 16 (AP)—The diplomatic exchange ship Drottningholm docked here today, after having anchored a quarter of a mile away for several hours, and 923 Germans, Italians, Hungarians and Bulgarians began coming ashore.

Many of them looked somewhat sad, for a large proportion were women with children who faced the prospect of war-time Europe's dangers and privations. A former secretary of Germany's Washington embassy remarked, however, "It is a pleasure to feel free again."

One hundred twenty-five Americans had arrived by train from Italy for repatriation on the Drottningholm, among them the Rev. Hiram Gruber Woolf, of Elmira, N. Y., rector of the famous St. Paul's American Episcopal church in Rome who was arrested November 18 on suspicion of espionage.

Mr. Woolf, Harold Denny, of Des Moines, Ia., New York Times correspondent who was captured in Libya, and a United States army observer, Maj. Michael Buckley, who also was captured in the midst of an African tank battle, were among 60 American diplomats and newspaper correspondents who arrived on the fourth and last diplomatic train from Rome.

Washington, May 16 (AP)—President Roosevelt today commuted the sentence of Earl Browder, communist party leader who has served approximately 14 months of a four-year sentence for passport fraud.

TWO RESIGN AT COLLEGE

Gettysburg College will end the current year with a balance in its treasury and the largest enrollment in its history in spite of war conditions which have put a strain on the resources of all colleges and reduced the enrollment of many, Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, college president, told members of the college Board of Trustees at their annual commencement session this morning in Glatfelter hall.

Two resignations were accepted by the board. Miss Elizabeth A. Connelly who became the first dean of women at Gettysburg last fall, is resigning her position to be married, and Dr. C. Allen Sloan, of the chemistry department is leaving the college to assume his duties as first lieutenant in the chemical warfare department of the United States Army.

Doctor Hanson revealed final plans for the summer session which will begin June 10. All men students will reside in Old Dorm which will remain open this summer for the first time in history. Coeds will stay at Myrtle Terrace, and all students will eat at Huber Hall in the main dining room.

In pursuing his hobby, Mr. Patterson has secured many periodicals and books describing and interpreting the Civil war. He thinks that in years to come more of the human and personal side of the war will be revealed through letters and memoirs that as yet have not been discovered.

LAWYER MAKES PERIODIC TOUR OF BATTLEFIELD

It took the conversation of a southern friend to launch a 25-year hobby on the study of the Civil war—with emphasis on the Gettysburg battlefield—for a New York lawyer.

The lawyer—Arthur C. Patterson—has made many trips to Gettysburg during the last 25 years to add to his knowledge about the battle. On almost each occasion he has been accompanied by one of two friends who also share an interest in the Civil war engagement here.

This year Mr. Patterson's companions are Col. Thomas Crimmins, also of New York, and Ernest G. Draper, of Washington. They studied the first day's battle on Friday and planned to finish their battlefield tour today. William H. Allison is their guide.

Colonel Crimmins, who was with an engineer regiment during the first World war, is interested in comparing the activities of the engineers in the Civil war with those of later wars. Mr. Draper is a governor on the Federal Reserve board in Washington. This is the first visit to the battlefield for both men.

In addition to his collection of books and pamphlets concerning the Civil war and the battle here, Mr. Patterson received first-hand information from his grandfather and an uncle who took part in the Gettysburg engagement.

His grandfather, Abraham L. Cox, of New York, served as Division surgeon for the Third Corps here. He often recalled treating General Paul when he was shot on Oak Ridge.

Lieut. John H. Patterson, also of New York, an uncle of Arthur C. Patterson, served with the 11th United States Infantry in the fighting near Devil's Den. Lieutenant Patterson also took part in the Spanish-American war.

Much Unknown Material
Much information about the battle was received by Arthur C. Patterson from General Butterfield, a personal acquaintance. The general was chief of staff during the engagement here.

As basis for this belief, Mr. Patterson pointed out that "new" information concerning the Revolutionary war still is being found.

French Battleship Now Reconditioned

Casablanca, French Morocco, May 16 (AP)—The population of Casablanca was notified today by authorities that the 35,000-ton French battleship Jean Bart, which has been in port here since the French-Axis armistice in 1940 for reconstruction of fire towers and other repairs, soon would take her first tests within this port.

The Jean Bart, the third of this name, was launched March 6, 1940, at St. Nazaire, France. Her fate was unknown at the time the Germans captured St. Nazaire but this dispatch indicates she made her way to French Morocco safely.

Flying Fortresses Are Without Equal

Spokane, Wash., May 16 (AP)—The United States air force never will be equalled in the big-bomber field, thinks Brig. Gen. Robert A. Olds, whose experience with the air giants dates back to the first four-motored bombers ever used by any air corps.

"There isn't a long range bomber in use on any front in the war today that is the equal of the flying fortress," the 46-year-old general asserted at a press conference in connection with his taking over command of the second air force.

The job of the air force is to develop the crews to match the excellence of the machines—"to build the greatest long range fighting machine in the world," he declared.

"Planes and instruments are built to clock-tick precision and they have to be handled that way to get the most from them. That's what we've got to teach."

Asked if he believed the Axis could develop planes to equal the fortresses, he replied quickly, "certainly," and added: "But when they do, we'll have something better. Something so much better, it'll take them five years more to catch up."

Dodgers Beat Pirates To Gain 4-Game National League Lead; Braves Second

BOSTON TEAM SPANKS CARDS IN 3 TO 2 TILT

By JUDSON BAILEY

(By The Associated Press)

The Brooklyn Dodgers are planning to raise their big white 1941 National league pennant on the outfield flagpole at Ebbets Field today with suitable ceremonies.

And if somebody says something about keeping the flag there and just changing the numerals for next season, the remark hardly would be amiss.

For the Dodgers now are four full games in front and apparently getting stronger day by day. They walloped the Pittsburgh Pirates so hard yesterday the Buccaneers fell out of second place. The score was 8-3.

Whitlow Wyatt, who hadn't hurled a complete game this season, although he worked nine scoreless stanzas of an extra-inning affair at Boston in his first start, went the route and acquired his second victory without a defeat. He fanned five and walked none.

Braves Beat Cards

Pittsburgh's second straight pounding by the Dodgers coincided with the Boston Braves' 3-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals and enabled Boston to squeeze into second place by a half game. It was the sixth success in eight games for the Braves.

The Redbirds were victims of five-hit pitching by Alva Javery and dropped from the first division to sixth place.

Perhaps an even greater thud was that of the Cincinnati Reds, who were fourth a couple of days ago and today were pushed back to seventh place. They received an unmerciful pounding, and Ray Starr absorbed his first defeat of the season at the hands of the New York Giants 13-5.

In the day's only other encounter, the Chicago Cubs beat the Philadelphia Phils 2-1 although Claude Passeau gave up nine hits to the five the Bruins made off Tommy Hughes. Passeau himself hit a homer to account for one of Chicago's runs.

The entire American league was kept idle by weather.

Binghamton and Albany remained in a tie for second place. The Triplets walloped Elmira, 6 to 2, while Albany shut out Williamsport, 9 to 0.

Wilkes-Barre took over fourth place by nosing out Springfield 4 to 2.

1500 Anglers At "Fishing Haven"

Belleville, Pa., May 16 (AP)—Opening day brought 1,500 eager anglers to the famed trout haven on nearby Spring creek.

The two-month season started yesterday under excellent conditions and the day's catch was reported by state fish hatchery officials here to be good as compared with past years.

An unidentified angler who netted a 22-inch speckled beauty got the biggest trout of the day. Good catches in the section set aside for women also were noted.

The one-mile section, owned by the state for the past 10 years, was opened as an experiment to show the effects of "intelligent development."

Harry Mendel, the bike racing maestro, has been appointed matchmaker for Mike Jacobs outdoor fight shows in Newark and Paterson, N. J., this summer. . . . Angott Retains His World's Lightweight Title; Beats Stoltz

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

New York, May 16 (AP)—The world lightweight boxing crown sat slightly askew on Sammy Angott's head today, titled by the good right hand of artful Allie Stoltz who floored the champion for a count of nine but couldn't shake him loose from the title.

Angott hit the deck in the third frame at Madison Square Garden last night, then bounced up and pounded out a 15-round decision over the Newark, New Jersey, challenger for a close but successful defense of the title he lifted from Lew Jenkins last December.

A 2-1 underdog in the betting but the favorite with the crowd, Stoltz came so near to outpointing the champion that Promoter Mike Jacobs immediately matched the pair for a return bout at the Garden June 11.

The date of the second meeting hinges on the recovery of Angott, who injured his right ankle in the eighth round but didn't appear to favor it during the later frames.

It was a rough and tumble slugger party from the opening bell. Low blows cost Stoltz the 12th and 14th rounds and possibly furnished the Washington, Pa., champion his margin of victory, although Angott lost the fifth stanza for the same reason.

Angott, who weighed 134½ to Stoltz's 133, used his usual crowding, rushing and leaning tactics to wear down his foe.

Stoltz tried to stay far enough away to catch Angott with his rapid right whenever the champion came charging in, but Angott weathered the counter-punching and piled up enough points to earn the nod of both ringside judges. Referee Frankie Pullam voted for Stoltz.

Biglerville, the only other team given a chance to catch York Springs, was knocked out of the race by Arendtsville who gained a 1-0 victory in a fine hurlers' duel at Arendtsville.

The only run of the game was scored in the first inning. Taylor singled and was forced at second by G. Slaybaugh. He stole second from where he scored on Baltzley's single.

Fairfield high ran wild to defeat East Berlin 25-4 at Fairfield. Coach Martin's outfit rolled up 14 runs in the sixth inning. Baker featured with three hits.

Here And There

the speaking game. He delivered hundreds of speeches, presided as toastmaster and master of ceremonies at numerous functions until he became in great demand. . . . so much so that he was forced to ask for compensation for his services. . . . for expenses at first, and later a more or less fixed fee.

In this endeavor Bill, and by almost popular demand, he gave addresses on "Close Ups of Famous Americans" and "Today's Headlines," reviews of current news topics and events. But folks wanted to know intimate sidelights and highlights of prominent men and women. . . . those whose names became widely known through the news columns. Bill interviewed most of the nation's big whigs. . . . men and women in the political field, in science, literature, drama, stage, screen and radio, sports. . . . baseball, boxing, wrestling and football. . . . big names, big people and he learned to know their little-known fancies and fads.

That's what his audiences wanted to hear and he gave it to them, far and wide. He's been practicing this profession and art of public speaking for eleven years. He has addressed more than a quarter of a million people. He has travelled more than 280,000 miles, through 24 states. . . . delivering some 664 speeches. . . . and still going strong.

Has he been a success at this "sideline"? Well, listen to this! Bill Duncan has given 74 addresses in the city of Philadelphia and vicinity. He has spoken fourteen times in the city of York. He has addressed every large Rotary club east of the Mississippi river, except four. His popularity as a speaker found greater favor in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Massachusetts and Minnesota. . . . in the order named. . . . as well as in sixteen other states.

Repeat engagements? Well, Cleveland invited him back four times. . . . The University of Wisconsin three times. . . . University of Minnesota four times.

He has also spoken before the student body of the following additional universities: South and North Dakota, Kansas, Pennsylvania and Delaware, as well as a large number of smaller institutions.

The Pennsylvania State Convention of Kiwanis clubs heard him two years ago. Teachers conventions, Masonic lodges, civic and fraternal organizations, county teachers' institutes, women's clubs and dozens of other organizations have booked him.

He addressed the inmates of the Huntingdon Reformatory where he received his greatest ovation, but, says Bill, "Those kids went wild. They hollered and cheered every story and joke. However, the ovation was not for me. Those young men were giving vent to pent-up emotions. It was an opportunity and they took advantage of it."

Bill's longest speaking engagement was five weeks. During that time he spoke twenty times in nineteen states and traveled nine thousand miles.

During his eleven years on the speaking platform Bill says he went through four stages of popular interest in speaking. . . . the racketeer era when "Scarface" Al Capone's eccentricities were of greatest interest to his hearers. Then came the political-shambles period with the late U.S. Senator Huey P. Long as the popular figure. John L. Lewis and his union reign followed. Now, Bill says, General MacArthur and the war are of greater public interest. "I haven't interviewed General MacArthur," says Bill, "but I will at the first opportunity."

C. William "Bill" Duncan graduated from Gettysburg college in 1917. He spent two years in the Navy during the first world war and travelled the Atlantic on a munitions ship. He was a ship and signal quartermaster, second class. At college he was a member of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity.

Six years ago he was elected alumni representative on the college board of trustees. After serving five years he was elected a full member of the board a position he now holds.

That's the story of a good newspaper man who became a good speaker and who still works at both games.

York Springs high school clinched first place in the Adams County Scholastic baseball league Friday afternoon by defeating New Oxford high on the latter's field 3-0.

C. Kime permitted New Oxford to hit three hits. Widasin was nearly as effective for the losers and yielded but four safeties. York Springs pushed over what proved to be the winning run in the first inning when two runs were tallied. Another score came in the fifth frame.

Biglerville, the only other team given a chance to catch York Springs, was knocked out of the race by Arendtsville who gained a 1-0 victory in a fine hurlers' duel at Arendtsville.

The only run of the game was scored in the first inning. Taylor singled and was forced at second by G. Slaybaugh. He stole second from where he scored on Baltzley's single.

Fairfield high ran wild to defeat East Berlin 25-4 at Fairfield. Coach Martin's outfit rolled up 14 runs in the sixth inning. Baker featured with three hits.

YOURSELF
Early we learn. Nature unfolds.
So do the mind and the personality.
The mind becomes clothed and furnished, just like our bodies become clothed and our homes furnished.
We attain knowledge. The wisdom of thousands of years is open to us
all. But within yourself is knowledge that you alone can fathom.
No one can ever possibly know you better than you know yourself.

People who say that they know you only speak in generalities. They judge you by themselves, which is a roundabout appraisal, gained by observing the mere shadows of human nature. You are labeled. Thus you are known merely in fragments!

You are both an entity and an unique. This fact should encourage you to stand out with courage and with confidence in yourself. This knowledge should also make you fearless. Within yourself is a spring from which gushes the pure flow of personality.

Experience is your inward teacher.
The voice within you speaks fact and truth. Outside is but the echo of hearsay and speculation. How alike you are to the undiscovered country, in whose bosom lie fragrant valleys, flowered fields, and riches unknown.

You are the first person in the world to demand and merit respect and admiration. Shakespeare owned a wealthy understanding. "To thine own self be true," he said.
Why should any man deceive himself? Misjudgments he can bravely overlook, but he can know no peace of mind or heart if he is untrue to himself.

You will never know more of life,
of books, of people, or of the world
at large, than you know of yourself.
That is your exclusive knowledge,
and you can only impart its aroma
in what you think, and do, or say.

Life is only important to you as you are important to yourself. Within you are latent sparks of genius, the seeds of rare achievement, and endless possibilities. Be yourself.
Borrow from no other human being.
Be proud to stand alone—master of
yourself!

Submarine Carries War To Mouth Of Mississippi River

BIG AMERICAN CARGO VESSEL IS TORPEDOED

New Orleans, May 16 (AP)—An enemy has brought warfare for the first time in 80 years to the lower Mississippi, the historic battleground where the world's first iron-clad warship appeared and where last a foreign invader trod United States soil.

An Axis submarine which sneaked into the Gulf of Mexico torpedoed a large American cargo vessel a mile and a half off the mouth of the river, killing 27 seamen. An explosion on a "jetty" or reinforced bank of the river itself was attributed to a stray torpedo—the first hostile projectile to strike the United States Gulf coast since the Civil war.

The cargo vessel was the fifth attacked and the fourth sunk in the Gulf by submarines during the present war. The sinking, which occurred last Tuesday, was announced here yesterday by the Eighth Naval district.

Burns Six Hours
It was at the mouth of the Mississippi that the Confederate ram Manassas, the first ironclad fighting steamer, led a southern "mosquito fleet" that routed a Union squadron and temporarily ended the blockade of New Orleans late in 1861.

It was on the banks of the Mississippi below New Orleans that Andrew Jackson and his motley army of regulars, volunteers, bu-caneers and free negroes turned back the British in 1815, the last time a foreign foe ever fought on United States soil.

The torpedoed vessel burned for six hours and sank in about 100 feet of water after members of the 41-man crew who were about to escape leaped over the vessel's windward side. All the survivors but one were seriously injured.

No. 241—Jan and Catriena Kouenover (Conover)

B. F. MacPherson
Jan and Catriena Kouenover
(Conover)

Through the baptismal records of the Low Dutch Reformed Church of the Conewago we now have definite proof that the Margaret La-shells (1763—August 29, 1803), whose grave is to be found in the Low Dutch cemetery, was the wife of George Lashells, the tavern-keeper.
Evidently she was Margaret Honts before her marriage for she is thus named in the record.

In spite of his feud with the church authorities George Lashells had at least four of his children baptized in the church as follows:
1. 1782—July 14—Lashells, Jores
and Margreta Honts—a son, Rulief.
2. 1786—November 12—Leshells,
Jores and Marguerita Honts—a son,
Johannis.

3. 1789—November 8—Lashells,
George and Marguerits Honts—a daughter, Antie.

4. 1791—November 1—Lashells,
Jores and Marguerita Honts—a son,
Jacob.

After a careful checking and comparison of data the author of this column has come to the conclusion that the George Lashells, who lies buried in the Bullado Crossroads Presbyterian cemetery, Union County, Pa., was the husband of the Margaret Lashells, whose grave is in the Low Dutch cemetery.

The dates of his birth and death make this fact rather apparent. Evidently he sold the tavern and following the lead of his son, Jacob, went to live in Union county. The inscription from the marker at his grave follows:

"In memory of
George Lashells, Departed on the 27th of May 1844.

Aged 88 years,
1 month and 3 days."

As you may recall two of the sons of George and Margaret Lashells, Ralph and Jacob, their wives and other members of their families are also buried here.

We will not say that this concludes our notes on the Lashells family for something else of interest may come to light in the future.
This merely concludes the notes for the time being.

The next soldier of the Revolution, whose grave is to be found in the Low Dutch cemetery is one John Kouenover (also spelled Couenover, Cowover, Cownover or Conover). The inscriptions from the

Mrs. L. L. Lampert Tells Of Jap Attack On Pearl Harbor

"Japanese planes flew so low over our front yard during the attack on Pearl Harbor that I believe I could have hit them with a broomstick."

That statement was made by Mrs.
Lester L. Lampert, wife of Lt. Col.
Lester L. Lampert, when she visited briefly this week with Lt. Col. and Mrs. E. G. Arnold, East Broadway and Harrisburg road.

Mrs. Lampert said she was awakened at 7:55 o'clock on the morning of December 7, 1941, by what she thought was a flight of American planes flying low over the area.
An unprecedented thing. "I got out of bed and complained to my husband about the noise. He was shaving and I dashed out of doors. I then saw a neighbor officer dash into some shrubbery and call me to seek cover. At that moment more planes flew low overhead. I immediately recognized the Rising Sun insignia on the planes and knew that we were being attacked by the Japs," said Mrs. Lampert.

Saw Pilots' Faces
Japanese pilots machine-gunned the populace. They flew so low over the city, Mrs. Lampert said, she could see the pilots' faces. She then ran back into the house in time to see her husband dash out the back door wiping lather from his face.
Looking out her window Mrs. Lampert could see the bombing of Wheeler Field a half-mile away. She then left the house and ran to the home of a friend to find her underneath a bed with her six weeks old baby. After a short stay there she returned home and dressed. Then she started to arrange some flowers in vases about her house. "A silly thing to do at a time like that, wasn't it?" said Mrs. Lampert.

"It was then that I thought of my Sunday School class and so I dashed for the church," said Mrs.
Lampert. On the way ambulances, traveling at top speed, passed her.
Drivers called to her to return home.
Over the radio a short time later came orders for women and children to go to the barracks. There she found women and children, some with little babies. From the barracks Mrs. Lampert went to the hospital where she helped to roll bandages for the balance of the day.

At dusk a light rain started falling and again over the radio came instructions for women to return home and gather a few bare necessities and be ready for evacuation.
Are Evacuated
In the dark, at home, no lights being permitted, Mrs. Lampert gathered together a few things and waited on her porch for two hours for a bus to pick her up. Loaded with women and children buses started for a schoolhouse near Honolulu proper, a trip that normally would take 45 minutes. At midnight, after a three hour ride, with numerous stops and delays because of traffic conditions and war emergency precautions, they reached their destination. En route they saw ships burning at sea.

"It was heart-rending to hear children crying, weary mothers without their formulas, comforting the youngsters. There were no beds and they all slept on the floor."
The following day, Monday, the schoolhouse occupants saw planes overhead. On Tuesday Mrs. Lampert went to Red Cross headquarters where she sought the whereabouts of other residents. Normalcy eventually was restored.

On the morning of the sixth day
Mrs. Lampert saw her husband for the first time since the attack. He had been on constant duty.

On December 23, Mrs. Lampert returned to the States via Clipper.
She is now residing in New York.

The Lamperts formerly resided in Gettysburg when Colonel Lampert was Professor of Military Science and Tactics at Gettysburg college.

CHINESE STEM JAP ADVANCE; HEAVY LOSSES

BY DANIEL DE LUCE

Calcutta, India, May 16 (AP)—
The Japanese last week failed in an attempt at lightning conquest of China's Yunnan province, it was reported today, thanks to a defiant Chinese governor who rallied his weakening troops and to daredevil Chinese and American fliers who ruled the air.

The story of how a Japanese push stalled near Paoshan a week ago, leaving the enemy with a tough, expensive campaign still to fight came today from aces of the American volunteer group who were in the battle.

(Since the AVG's valiant intervention to turn back the first Japanese thrust, however, the invaders, heavily reinforced, have regained all the territory they were compelled to abandon at that time and taken even more.)

Laud Chinaman (Along the Burma road they have driven to the west bank of the Salween river, 125 miles inside
China, and sent another column off to the north to capture the important town of Tengyueh. The Chinese, having destroyed the Salween bridges, now hold the east bank in force, defending Paoshan 55 miles away.)

These Flying Tigers gave the laurels to Governor Lung Yun, a former Chinese warlord and trusted confidante of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek. They said he organized a successful defense of the province almost overnight, stiffening the leadership of the scattered Chinese Sixth army retreating from the Shan states of Burma.

An advance enemy detachment had raided the environs of Paoshan itself when the governor assumed the military responsibility.

Within 48 hours, the American fliers said, the Japanese were driven back from the Salween river and even now, although the invaders have been reinforced, Chungking reports that the Chinese still hold the east bank of the river in force defending Paoshan, 55 miles away, which is on the Burma road about 125 miles from the Burma border.

4,000 Casualties
(The Chinese central news agency said today the invaders had suffered more than 4,000 casualties in Yun-

Then, it was said, Lung directed the

the Salween May 6 and 7, dispersed Chinese troops on the west bank reclosed in on the enemy from all

CANDIDATE FOR RE-ELECTION

To The State House of Representatives

I personally urge that all Democratic voters support Elmer

Sinclair Offers "Car Saver" Plan

Designed to help keep cars running for the duration, a new "Car Saver" plan is now being offered to motorists by Sinclair dealers in this vicinity. Interested motorists may obtain from their dealers a "Car Saver Service" certificate which lists a comprehensive schedule of inspections and service operations to be performed during a 5,000 mile period in addition to a number of free car saver services.

The certificate also offers information on proper driving and care of the car during modern wartime. A feature of the certificate provides for the recording of the serial numbers and other important data regarding tires which would be of value to the motorist in event of theft.

"The Sinclair Car Saver plan," said John Hartman, local agent of the Sinclair Refining company, "is our way of helping our customers care for their cars during these critical times. Pleasure driving has been almost suspended for the duration, but necessity transportation makes everybody's car a 'war car' these days. By offering a vital service that will extend a car's mileage, local Sinclair dealers are helping to do their part to keep war cars running," said Mr. Hartman.

Mr. Hartman and other Sinclair dealers in the county have been attending the meetings for the last six weeks in the William Penn hotel, Harrisburg.

avenue, who is stationed at Camp Livingston, Louisiana, reports that he is attending an Army training school for cooks and bakers.

Mrs. Harry Smith, who has been a patient for two weeks at the Hanover General hospital, was returned to her home near town during the week. Her progress is reported satisfactory.

Mrs. Margie Fox, of Plainfield, New Jersey, has been spending some time here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Brown, both of whom are able to be about after illness.

Miss Mary Wagner, daughter of Mrs. A. P. Wagner, Lincolnway West, observed her twentieth birthday during the week at Providence hospital, Washington, D. C., where she is a student nurse.

Exports of merchandise from the United States were valued at $5,145,786,000 for the calendar year 1941, statistics of the Department of Commerce show.

INTELLIGENT CARE OF YOUR CAR Will Save Gas and Oil

As a car owner, you are naturally concerned by the shortage in rubber, by reduced automobile production, and by the possible shortage of oil and the rationing of gasoline.

Suggestions are listed below for prolonging the life of your tires and your car—and for obtaining economical gasoline and oil mileage.

1 Avoid high speeds on the open highway—for safety and economy. One hundred gallons of gasoline will give as much mileage at 30 miles per hour as 110 gallons at 50 miles per hour. Oil consumption is one-third less at the lower speed. Tire and engine wear are less too.

2 Avoid "cowboy" driving—racing away at traffic lights, sudden and excessive braking, slipping clutches, running over curbs.

3 Have your car thoroughly lubricated every 1,000 miles. Make sure it is done by a dependable dealer with a reputable organization behind him.

4 Change oil every 1,000 miles. Dirty oil can cause dangerous wear, increased consumption and costly repairs.

5 Install an oil-bath air cleaner. Have it checked every time your car is lubricated.

6 Keep the entire cooling system CLEAN. Flush BOTH the radiator and engine block, and put in a good rust inhibitor.

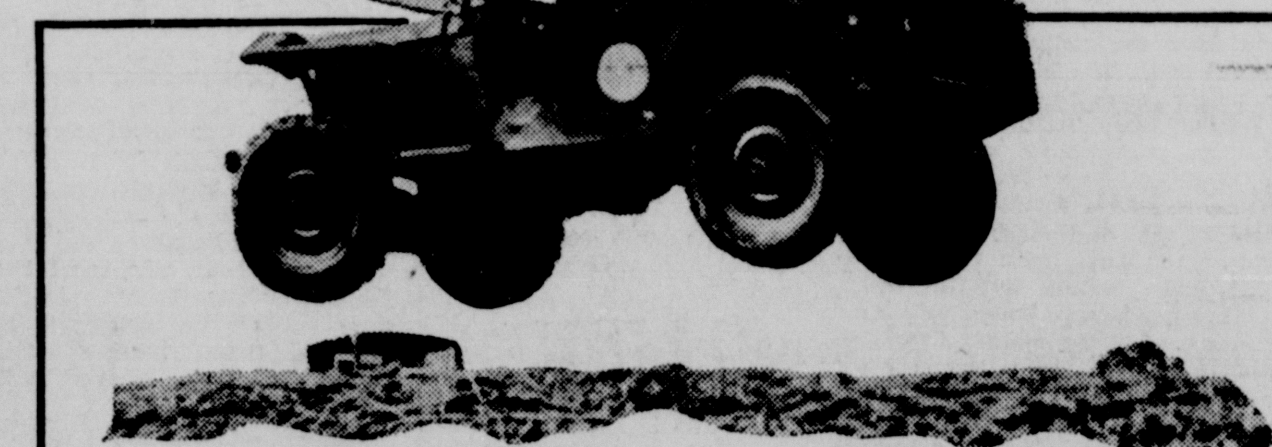

7 Keep battery fully charged and add water regularly. Have the voltage regulator checked occasionally. Make sure that water pump, fan belt and distributor are inspected periodically.

8 Maintain tires at full pressure for maximum mileage. Tire life is lengthened as much as 25%, if you change the position of the tires, including the spare, every 4,000 miles.

9 Every 6,000 miles—or at least every six months—give your car the protection of a complete and careful mechanical check-up. These practical suggestions, if followed, will give your car longer life—at lower cost.

FOR YOUR CAR, TOO!

You can give your car the same protection against wear that the Army gives many of its "Jeeps", tanks and other vehicles. Just see your nearby Sinclair Dealer. He has Sinclair lubricants of the same quality used by the U. S. Army.

To save wear on your engine, ask for Sinclair Opaline Motor Oil. Opaline stands up better and lasts longer because it is de-waxed and de-jellied. Have your Sinclair Dealer drain and refill your crankcase with Opaline every 1,000 miles.

The best thing to take when you're run down is the license number.

How Does It Go?

Cutting down highway speeds will result in less overheating trouble this summer, but I for one plan to make sure that some overheating troubles are not creeping up on me. One way is to drive about 40 miles an hour in second gear for a few blocks. This is the equivalent of much higher speeds in high and it will show up such conditions as a partially clogged radiator core, a collapsing lower water hose, weak breaker arm spring, weak valve springs and trouble with the fan or its bearing. Fast driving, while wasteful and dangerous, has always served to reveal how delicate is the balance between successful rolling and difficulty. It can be approximated as a test by using second gear.

Valve Trouble Brewing

When you handle a valve it certainly doesn't look as if it could develop so many ailments. We have to consider, however, that it works with other parts and that troubles develop when these combinations are not as they should be. For example, your service man may find that a valve head does not seat properly, due to packed down carbon, insufficient tappet clearance, a warped valve head or a warped engine block. The valve stem may stick. There may be a worn stem or a worn guide, or both, thus allowing air to be sucked up to lean out the mixture. Weakness may be found in the valve spring. There may be incorrect tappet clearances and the push rod and guide may be worn. There are other valve irregularities but these will give you enough of an idea why you may need a valve job on the engine even if it seems to be running all right.

The Motor Primer

In spite of the fact that brakes have been undergoing important changes in the past twenty years many drivers still think of things in terms of the earlier days. You hear them say that if they use the brakes too much on a downgrade the lining will not only burn out but the wheels will lock. That was true where brake bands encircled the drums and when expansion of the drums naturally made the brakes grip the harder. Today's brakes are internal expanding. Shoes press outward against the inside of the drum. When the drum expands it moves away from the shoes. The brakes fade. They fail, temporarily.

The way these shoes work in interesting. Some of them have a wedging effect known as the self-energizing principle. Others are designed to press outward evenly and with no wedging or wrapping effect. The latter do not give as powerful or as easy a brake, other things being equal, but certain difficulties of equalization are avoided. Engineers are still undecided about how to accomplish results in the easiest, safest and most efficient way.

Mechanic Joe Speaking:

"Sometimes I think it is unfortunate we know so many simple causes of car ailments. These tend to blind us to the real conditions which lie behind troubles.

"I told a customer that the generator wasn't charging enough and got the anticipated answer when he said that this probably was due to the belt slipping. That, true enough, is one likely cause. But in his case we found that the brushes had been worn short. General failure may also be due to brushes sticking in their holders or to the holders becoming grounded. Weak spring tension is another possibility."

Now that cars are being kept longer we can expect more of the sort of trouble which they have not known for some years. I refer to the dragging clutch which, in turn, is the result of oil leaking past the main engine bearing into the clutch housing. This results from wear on the bearing combined with failure of the oil retainer to do a good job of keeping lube from getting back to the clutch. In recent years such leakage of oil has been greatly lessened by providing the clutch housing with vents so as to reduce the suction effect of clutch plates. This, however, is not complete insurance against such leakage because leakage around the rear main engine bearing is certain to develop in time. Before clutch dragging becomes a source of additional trouble have the engine bearings serviced.

At this point it would be well to note the difference between a dragging clutch and a grabbing clutch. The former makes itself known by difficulty getting into low or reverse. Sometimes it is necessary to stop the engine in order to make the shift and then start over again. Grabbing is evidenced by inability to engage the clutch smoothly. When a clutch grabs the trouble may be due to gummed oil or grease on the plates but is more likely the result of plate warpage. Dragging is the result of gummed oil or grease preventing full disengagement of the plates. This can sometimes be remedied, at least temporarily, by slipping the clutch a little—just enough to burn off some of the gummy oil. This would only make matters worse if the clutch plates are warped. Grabbing can also be due to dampness affecting the clutch plate facings.

Riding with Russell

Keep These in Mind

Mud caked on a wheel will throw it out of balance, resulting in spotty wear on the tire.

If the engine hesitates when accelerating very slowly the indications are that there is what is known as a "flat spot" in the carburetor mixture range, but if the hesitation is during rapid acceleration there is trouble with the acceleration pump.

An acceleration pump can deliver too much fuel in which case the engine develops what is best described as a "stumbling" action.

Stalls Waste Gas

Just for good measure consider the fact that sudden stops also waste gasoline by disturbing the fuel supply in the carburetor. Often the engine stalls and the driver has to waste a lot of gas trying to re-start.

Getting Back to Facts

The war is serving to bring out some truths about our cars and methods of caring for them. One of the most interesting discoveries is that roughened breaker points may be more satisfactory than those which are highly polished. The jagged ones may actually have more points of contact than the smooth ones which, if not accurately lined up, may touch only on an edge.

Tires furnish another fact that has been widely overlooked. We've thought too much about tread, especially thickness of the tread, and not enough about the carcass. The best tires are those with the greatest amount of rubber around the cotton or rayon cords. Tread is largely for puncture protection, long wear, greater softness and anti-skid protection. The heart of the tire is the carcass which has everything to do with what the tire will stand by way of heat. The blowout starts at the carcass, not at the tread.

What's Your Trouble?

Q. Recently I have heard a lot about the virtues in overinflating tires in order to get more mileage from them. Doesn't this wear the center of the tread excessively? L. D.

A. Yes, but underinflation wears both sides of the tread, and is likely to cup the treads too. Let's be reasonable. Recommended pressures have been largely with a view to making the car ride easy. We can safely go 5 to 15 per cent above these—and should for best tire mileage except in slippery weather.

Q. I have found it necessary to pour hot water over the door handle of my car when trying to unlock it in the morning. This happens even when the weather isn't cold. What can I do about this? Mrs. K. M. S.

A. To start with, the lock certainly isn't frozen, otherwise there would be no resistance above 32 degrees. The lock is badly in need of lubrication. The only kind you can use for this is powdered graphite which should be blown into the lock with a fine gun for this purpose. Also put graphite powder on the key.

Q. When I start up my car in the morning the ammeter shows high charging rate as it should when the generator is cold, but after I get running a while the charging rate drops way down to around 9. I've checked the brushes and cleaned the commutator. D. W. S.

A. The generator's belt is slipping. On this car there is a separate belt for the generator. When cold the belt is likely to grip better and keep the charging rate normal. Q. I've tried everything to check front wheel shimmy. Even had the wheels and tires balanced. M. C.

A. This is one of the earlier cars with leaf front springs. The springs have weakened. Have them rearced. Mr. Russell will answer questions regarding the safe care and operation of your car. Just address him care of The Gettysburg Times and enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for personal reply.

Ministers Are Told to Preach "Jesus Christ"

(Continued from First Page) It was not an end in itself, because it had come to fulfillment. This is Jesus' own answer to the question: "This day is this Scripture fulfilled in your ears."

Book of Salvation Let us recall what it was that he read. The lesson was from Isaiah 61, including vv 1-3. It is a segment of that part of Isaiah which deals prophetically with the deliverance from the Babylonian exile which was about to come. This so-called Second Isaiah is a book of salvation. For the people to whom its prophecies were given it was the prospect of their return to the land of their birth and their re-establishment in the religion of their fathers. Running through it like a golden cord is a series of lyrics on the call and mission of God's Chosen One, extolling the service of their God, particularly the experience of the Servant, and, in the classic 53rd chapter, his death, and, if these vv of ch 61 form one of them—and there is good reason for taking it so—heralding his mission to the world. These songs have been a stumbling-block for Jewish exegetes. "Of whom speaketh the prophet this?" With guarded reserve scholars have ventured their interpretations. But here is a man who reads the last of these Songs, well knowing their connotations, and then closes the book and says, "This day is this Scripture fulfilled in your ears." It is not enough to say that He was announcing the platform on which He proposed to conduct His ministry. He was quoting a prophecy, and He knew what He was quoting, and He said it was fulfilled. The book was the teaching. He was the Teacher. The book did not have its interpretation until He interpreted it. The tragedy of the Jews to this day is their inability to interpret it.

Story of Reality Let us get this clear, the fulfillment of the book is Jesus. We have the book with us still, and we read it still, but we do not read it as the rulers of the synagogues read it. Its prophecy is illuminated by its history. Instead of being just a whisper and a promise, it is now a story of what has been and is. It is a simple matter of history that the words of Isaiah have become the classic description of the mission of Jesus Christ. As a prophecy considered by itself we see one who is only, to use the words of GAS, "a spectre, a dream, a conscience without a voice, without a name, without a place in history. But in Jesus the dream becomes a reality; He whom we see in this prophecy only as the purpose of God, only through the eyes and the conscience of a generation yet unborn, comes forward in flesh and blood." He speaks, He explains Himself, He implements the hopes and dreams not only of His own race but of mankind, until impotent to be born. Gentlemen of the graduating class, what this means for you is, you are not going forth to search for a message that you may proclaim as the solution of the world's ills—you have your message. The book is closed. The fact is here. Your commission is not to find a theory of life which may soften the ills of a confused and troubled age but to preach Jesus Christ. That is what the first Christian preachers did, and they brought our entire Western world under the sway of His gospel.

Not Book of Magic Again, Jesus closed the book because it is only a book. We have said, the book was not an end in itself. Protestants at times have come near to making it an end in itself. There are those who have treated it as if it were a book of magic. We have put our faith in the text of the book, just as we have put our faith in the text of our Confessions, forgetting that we are saved by the Lord of the book and of the Confessions. On the other hand, scholars have treated it as if it were a collection of archaeological fossils to be segregated and catalogued and placed in their proper niches. The Bible did not drop from heaven, nor is it a mere fortuitous collection of ancient documents. The Bible grew out of life. It is the record of a great experience—the experience of salvation. It was this which prompted the writers of the Old Testament to write the record of that experience in their nation, and the writers of the New Testament to write the record of the Incarnation and what it has done for us. We sometimes hear people express the wish that they could read the Bible in its original languages. That is a laudable wish, and, as a matter of fact, it is the only way in which a man can be sure of the meaning of the text of the Bible. But that does not mean that the Bible cannot be understood without Hebrew and Greek. The original language of the Bible, back of all others, is life. The deep, original language of human experience in its joys and in its sorrows, in its self-condemnation and in its faith—that is the language in which the Bible was first written. What I mean to say is, the truths of the Bible become clearer to us, not as we ponder them on the printed page, but as we relive them in experience. The Bible primarily has to do with people, not with doctrines or with programs. That is what we mean when we say that the truths of the Bible become clearer, not as we ponder them on the printed page, not as we grapple with them as abstract dogmas, but as we close the book and see them working out in life. Take the prophetic principle of fixing sins. You may arraign wrong in high places with all the ponderous vocabulary of political and social science, you may pile Pelion of righteous indignation in condemnation of soulless autocracy, or corporate greed, or murderous monopoly, but when God wanted to get results He sent His prophet to the King to tell the story of the poor man's little ewe lamb, with its stinging application, Thou art the man. Take the theological principle of the love of God. You may balance the divine attributes until your logic leaves you no escape from the Fatherhood of God, but you will never know the deepest wealth of that immortal sille until you kneel by the bedside of your little boy who has cried himself asleep over the accidents and disappointments of his day. Jesus closed the book because a book could not tell the whole story of the righteousness and love of God. Again, He closed the book because life was calling. Dr. Milton Val-

U.S. Toast (Sydney, Australia, May 16 (AP))—Three sailors at a hotel grill drank slowly, thinking of things far away. Suddenly, glass tinkled. The men had broken their drinking glasses in unison. "What did you do that for?" belligerently asked the hotel keeper. "You'd better go away. We're toasting comrades who didn't come back." That terse reply ended the incident—and disclosed that the first men who fought the battle of the Coral sea were back from what might have been the greatest naval action since Jutland.

JOINT INCOME TAX PROPOSAL TO BE FOUGHT

BY DONALD A. YOUNG Washington, May 16 (AP)—A drive against proposals compelling joint income tax returns by husbands and wives started today, less than 24 hours after the House ways and means committee approved the joint return plan which congress rejected last year.

The treasury says joint returns would add $300,000,000 to the nation's war chest. Quick opposition developed, however, among law-makers from the nine "community property" states of Louisiana, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Washington, Oregon, Nevada and Oklahoma.

Representatives West (D-Tex.), Gearhart (R-Calif) and other law-makers from the nine states predicted they would be able to defeat the joint income tax proposal. Laws of those states provide that husband and wife have an equal interest in each other's property and income. Thus if a man made $10,000 yearly under such laws he and his wife might file separate returns for $5,000 yearly each, escaping some of the surtax on high incomes.

The House defeated the joint income tax proposal last year by a roll call vote of 242 to 160. An attempt to restore it in the Senate failed before a vote was reached. House committee approval yesterday was 13 to 10.

The committee voted after refusing to change the present law which exempts from federal taxation the income from state and local securities. It refused on two votes to make either outstanding or future issues subject to tax, although Secretary Morgenthau said the step was necessary to raise $200,000,000 and to end the "sheltered position" of holders of such securities.

entine, one of the distinguished men who have taught theology in this Seminary, gave us a phrase which may well be taken as our motto: "Christian Truth and Life." In those four words we have the program for which we exist. The Seminary has never minimized scholarship, but has always been urgent towards its attainment; but it has never laid its emphasis on scholarship alone. Scholarship is not a guaranty of success in the Christian ministry. Jesus did not linger over the roll of Isaiah and spend His days matching wits with the rabbis in its interpretation, any more than later did He let Peter have his way and erect tents for the favored three on the Mount of Transfiguration. At the foot of the mountain there was a child with an unclean spirit to be healed and a group of disciples trying to recover the afflicted lad and apply the power over the tormenter which Jesus had promised them. That was where the favored three belonged. The Transfiguration privilege was not an end in itself. Jesus Himself had closed the book in the synagogue at Nazareth and plunged into the teeming life of the city of Capernaum, teaching its eager souls the gospel of redemption, healing its broken lives, preaching deliverance to its sin-bound captives, recovering sight to those who groped in darkness, setting at liberty those who were oppressed.

That, young brethren, is what He is summoning you to do. Life is calling you. For the years which close tonight you have been men of the open book. You have been acquiring the training which the Church has prescribed to its candidates for the ministry. You have been students of her oracles and symbols, her rites and ceremonies. There is something to be learned before a man is ready for the ministry. While the gospel is a very simple message, it is not of yesterday. It came to the world through a long process of preparation. It emerged out of the chaos of the Fall, it planted itself in the religious aspirations of a race, it embodied itself in the cultus and literature of a nation, it incarnated itself in the Messiah, it housed itself in His Church, it has established itself in His kingdom. One cannot preach the gospel with authority without knowing the history and institutions of the gospel. Books are necessary for the preacher—a great many of them—and you have been living with them, and at times you have wished for yourselves that the life of the student in cloistered halls might go on forever. But the time comes, and it has come for you now, when you must ask yourselves what it is all for—"Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" The book is closed. Life is calling. The fields are white unto harvest. Your Alma Mater bids you begone and gives you her blessing.

WORKING PARTNERSHIP San Francisco, May 16 (AP)—William P. Witherow, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, says a working partnership among government, industry, labor and the public is essential to the success of the nation's war production drive. This community of effort, he suggested Thursday night in a dinner address before the association's Pacific coast regional conference, might best be achieved through "a domestic companion to the famed Atlantic charter—an eight-point charter for industrial harmony."

WAR FRAUDS TO GO TO COURTS

By JAMES J. STREIBIG

Washington, May 16 (AP)—Evidence on alleged fraud in war production contracts soon will be placed before Federal grand juries all over the country, Attorney General Biddle announced today.

Preliminary investigations of complaints have been underway by the Justice department's war frauds unit for several months and these will be intensified under an expanded organization. The unit also will prosecute cases arising under Office of Price Administration ration and price-ceiling orders.

Thus far it has obtained several indictments in connection with tire ration violations, and has developed cases which officials estimated involved several million dollars in alleged "chiseling" on contracts.

Fraud Charges

Biddle said that the cases soon to be ready for presentation to grand juries involved:

1. Faulty materials, supplies and workmanship in products delivered to the government.
2. Alleged conspiracies to increase the cost of plants and factories built to produce war materials.
3. Practices which have increased the cost of food and supplies for the Army and Navy.

The attorney general announced that Tom C. Clark, former chief of anti-trust activities on the west coast and later civilian head of the Japanese evacuation program in that area, would direct the fraud investigation with a staff of 75 attorneys.

Self-Married Couple Plan 50th Anniversary

Pittsburgh, May 16 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Owen H. Garrison of Wilkinsburg, who married themselves under Pennsylvania's "self-marriage law," will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary with a public reception in Wilkinsburg's First Presbyterian church next Saturday.

Under the old statute, a couple makes application in the usual manner, but instead of a license they receive a marriage agreement which they merely sign in the presence of two witnesses.

"We unite ourselves in marriage x x x" the agreement says. "It still is a perfectly legal way of getting married in Pennsylvania," marriage license Clerk Bert D. Winters said, "but very few people know about it. I have been in the office for 10 years and haven't been asked for one yet."

Garrison is a Common Pleas court tipstaff and Spanish-American war veteran. He and his wife reared eight children and have nine grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Selectee Also Has A Big Appetite

Johnstown, Pa., May 16 (AP)—Bernie Spiegel, six-foot four-inch selectee just arrived at the New Cumberland reception quarters, telephoned his Johnstown home last night to report on his first day in the Army. "Everything is okay but they can't find a coat or shoes big enough for me," he said. "Just wait until they start to feed you—then they'll learn something," laughed his mother, Mrs. Joseph Spiegel, referring to the youth's appetite.

AUTO DEATHS CLIMB

Harrisburg, May 16 (AP)—A 12 per cent increase in state automobile fatalities has been noted by the Department of Revenue for the first four months of the year. Despite restricted tire and auto purchases, 655 persons died in accidents, compared to 579 in the same period last year.

ALLIED HOPES BRIGHTER SAYS FAMED BRITON

A Northeast English Town, May 16 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill declared today that the point whence it will be a downhill fight to an Allied victory now has come into sight.

"We have reached the period in the war when it would be premature to say we have topped the ridge," Churchill told an audience here, "but we see the ridge ahead now."

"The United Nations will come to the top of the ridge and then they will have a chance not only of beating down and subduing those evil forces which had twice let ruin and havoc on the world but they have a further and grander prospect beyond the smoke of battle and confusion of the fight," he added.

The enemy is not so ready "to come to this island" because "he knows our arrangements for meeting him" which are "improving in power and efficiency every day," Churchill declared.

Sunlight Is Ahead

Moreover a "large portion" of the German air force is engaged on the Russian front, the Prime Minister added.

The cause of the United Nations, he said, appeals to all those "not already gripped by tyranny" or "seduced to its insidious vice."

"This cause is shared by all the millions of our cousins across the Atlantic who are preparing night and day to have their will and rights preserved," he went on.

Churchill declared that from now on the war would not be "brave men against men armed" but the fight of "a people not only with resolve and a cause but who also have weapons."

He promised that the United Nations would have "to make and fight their way" and "it is sure and certain that our perseverance will see us through these dark and dangerous valleys into sunlight more lasting than mankind has ever known."

PAY BOOST FOR SERVICE MEN FACES BATTLE

BY JACK BELL

Washington, May 16 (AP)—Congress would like to know whether President Roosevelt favors paying army buck privates and navy apprentice seamen the $42 monthly voted by the senate or the $50 approved by the house, members said today.

With the hope of getting at least an indirect indication of the President's attitude, members of a joint senate-house conference committee have asked the budget bureau for its opinion on the military pay adjustment bill.

Chairman Reynolds (D-NC) of the senate military affairs committee said the conferees probably would be guided largely by the bureau's recommendations—if any were forthcoming—in attempting to compose senate and house differences over the politically-delicate pay question. The bureau ignored the senate committee's request for an opinion when the measure first was being prepared for senate action.

House members, fortified with a 331 to 28 vote of their body, were expected to insist upon retaining the $50 scale. Senate conferees, on the other hand, were bound to put up an argument for the $42 figure, although some of them personally were reported to favor the higher amount.

Senator George (D-Ga) called attention to the fact that adoption by congress of pending proposals to lower exemptions for single persons to $500 would automatically bring privates without dependents within the fold of income taxpayers.

He said that while he was not opposed to reasonable increases in the soldier's pay, he disliked the idea of making it necessary for thousands of army privates and navy apprentice seamen to fill out income tax returns.

Gas Cards To Be Publicized

Washington, May 16 (AP)—Publicity for all gasoline card holders was in order today as rationing of the precious motor fuel swung into the second day in Atlantic coast states.

Falling into line with President Roosevelt's press conference opinion that the type of cards issued should be a matter of public record, Price Administrator Leon Henderson decided that the confidential status is to be dropped. He decreed that local rationing board make available all the records "as soon as practicable."

Sergeant M. W. Socia Gets Army Promotion

Fort Bragg, N. C., May 16—The promotion of Staff Sergeant Marvin W. Socia, Gettysburg, to the rank of warrant officer, junior grade, has been announced by Major K. L. Johnson, commanding officer of the 99th Field Artillery Battalion, a pack howitzer unit of the Provisional Field Artillery Brigade here.

Mr. Socia first enlisted February 20, 1936, and was then assigned to the 6th Field Artillery at Fort Hoyle, Maryland. He spent two years with the 2nd Field Artillery in Panama and, upon his return in 1941, was assigned to Headquarters Battery of the 99th. He was promoted to private first class on June 24, 1939, to corporal two days later, to sergeant on May 1, 1940, and to staff sergeant September 2, 1940. He now performs the duties of personnel sergeant major in the 99th.

He is a graduate of Gettysburg high school and a former football and track star.

Better Effort Is Needed To Win War

Pittsburgh, May 16 (AP)—Roger B. Merriman, Sr., noted history professor at Harvard, said in a commencement address at Shady Side academy yesterday that if the war were to end suddenly now in a victory of the United Nations, "Russia would have to sit at the head of the peace conference table."

"If the English-speaking peoples of the world expect to preserve their heritage of liberty, they've got to do a larger share of the job in winning the war than they've done so far," they've got to stage a major successful offensive," he said.

Merriman told the graduates to convince themselves that "the days of the isolation of the United States from the current of world politics are over, and will never return."

County Soldier At Air Corps School

Keesler Field, Miss., May 16—Pvt. Edward Nickolls, son of Mrs. Catherine Nickolls, Biglerville, has started a 19-week Airplane Mechanics course at the Air Corps Technical School here, at the completion of which he will be ready for active duty with Uncle Sam's fighting planes "on the lines."

Private Nickolls, who came here from Ft. George G. Meade, reception center, already has completed his basic drill, which includes marching, target practice, bayonet drill, and orientation lectures.

In school he will take successive 10-day courses covering aircraft maintenance, fundamentals, airplane structures, hydraulic systems, propellers, instruments, engines, electrical systems, fuel systems, engine operation, and inspection of single and multi-engined planes.

Harrisburg, May 16 (AP)—State Council of Defense today approved an eight-county practice blackout in north central Pennsylvania from 10 to 11 p. m. next Wednesday. Counties participating will be Clinton, Union, Lycoming, Centre, Snyder, Cameron, Potter and Northumberland. The counties comprise the largest area yet covered by a simultaneous blackout in the state, the council said.

GERMAN LOSS "TREMENDOUS" AT KHARKOV

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

Moscow, May 16 (AP)—German defenders of Kharkov were reported ousted from a further series of firing lines and many communities today despite strong resistance and armored wreckage marked their roads of retreat before the tank-paced legions of Marshal Semeon Timoshenko.

In a special communique, the German high command claimed that both the city and harbor of Kerch, stepping stone to the rich Caucasus oil fields, were in German hands.

(While this claim was not borne out by Russian advices, the Germans flatly stated "the town and harbor are in German hands.")

(Unconfirmed dispatches to London said there was street-fighting in northeastern suburbs of Kharkov, reported seat of Field Marshal General Fedor Von Bock's southern command, and that the Russians now were crossing the Donets river on a 70-mile front between Belgorod and Zimiev for the widening offensive.)

The army newspaper Red Star said the German high command had planned to launch a spring offensive of its own on the Kharkov front and was sending considerable reserve forces to the most menaced points for local counterattacks. These, it said, had failed to achieve the expected effect.

The Soviet information bureau announced that "our troops destroyed 255 guns, damaged more than 250 tanks and brought down 40 enemy planes" and the Kharkov offensive was declared to be developing irresistibly.

"A large number of prisoners has been taken," the Soviet information bureau reported at mid-day. "Our troops have captured tanks, guns, motor vehicles, ammunition dumps and warehouses of war materials and provisions."

German losses were described as tremendous.

Stubborn battles were said to have continued through the night on the Kerch peninsula, where Red army troops have yielded ground before General Fritz Erich Von Manstein's German-Rumanian assault units.

Wreck Four Trains

Far to the north, Red army detachments on the Leningrad front were said to have wiped out 1,290 enemy troops in three days and destroyed two field guns, six block-houses and a torpedo boat.

Scouts operating at the enemy rear on the central front have wrecked four enemy army trains and more than 200 Germans lost their lives in the crashes, it was said.

German material losses were emphasized.

A Moscow radio commentator, Major Gorostsky, said 120 German tanks were destroyed in a single battle of armored units and the Ukraine was being liberated "kilometer by kilometer."

(It is 450 miles, however, from Kharkov to the western border of the Ukraine at the old Polish frontier.)

WARNS OF SABOTAGE

Harrisburg, May 16 (AP)—Industries in central Pennsylvania were warned by Colonel Albert H. Stackpole, acting commanding officer of the U. S. Army Internal Security Force in eastern Pennsylvania, to keep a constant guard against sabotage.

UNFAIR TO LOVE

By Watkins E. Wright

Yesterday: Joe Neely has picketed Kathleen Vaughan because Kathleen has postponed their wedding. In order to try for a part in the summer theater company which has rented her barn. And now Kathleen, to get Joe and his placard off the street, has asked him to break-fast, and much to Joe's annoyance, somebody has telephoned Kathleen, and she is very obviously delighted.

Chapter Four

Date with DeMille
"Oh," said Kathleen. "Fred DeMille wants to take me to the Country Club Saturday night."

"You mean that was Fred DeMille?" Joe gasped.

"Yes," said Kathleen.

Joe laid down his knife and fork. He glared at Uncle Frank.

"So they don't get up this early!" he said. "The devil they don't!"

Kathleen, smiling happily, sat down. "I think I will have some breakfast, after all," she said when Lizzie came in with the coffee pot.

"One egg—fried on one side—and two well-done slices of bacon."

"Yes," said Lizzie.

"I take your appetite, it doesn't seem," said Joe. "And the DeMille guy gives you one?"

"Oh, I wouldn't say that exactly," said Kathleen. "But it does make a girl feel good to have people appreciate her. Fred said they were all so grateful to me for the way I'd co-operated with them getting the barn ready."

"Do tell!" said Joe sarcastically. "Just like in the movies," he went on. "City slicker comes down to small town, says a lot of snappy things to ignorant little country girl—and she falls like a wagon load of hay."

"You would have to say something mean like that," said Kathleen.

A heavy and unhappy silence fell upon the room. Joe suddenly finished his eggs. Uncle Frank looked at him, and then at Kathleen. He felt that it was up to him to take over.

"And although she knew I liked bridge and swimming," he said, "she wouldn't join me at either."

"Who?" said Kathleen.

"That actress I was telling you about."

"Oh!"

"Then, believe it or not, a year later it came to me all of a sudden why."

"Why what?" said Joe.

"Why she wouldn't play bridge or go swimming."

"All right," said Joe impatiently. "Go on."

"Bridge is a game that requires concentration," said Uncle Frank. "And the actress didn't like anything that took her mind off her self."

"But what about the swimming?" Joe wanted to know.

"That didn't appeal to her, because it meant, she'd have to get mugged up a bit; you know, make-up, wave in her hair, all that."

"Darned vain, selfish little exhibitionist!" said Joe.

No Help

"Right, sonny," said Uncle Frank. "And to think, my own niece—my dear, dead brother's only child—plans to be a woman like that!"

"I do not!" said Kathleen. "And if you must keep bringing up your past, Uncle Frank, I wish you'd do it somewhere else. Or go write your memoirs—and stop talking them."

Uncle Frank chuckled. "I might do that one of these days," he said. He popped another lump of sugar into his mouth. "Meanwhile, I'll go back to my chickens—the feathered sort. They're safer."

When he had gone Joe gave Kathleen a hard look.

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself," he said. "Being so rude to your uncle."

"I wasn't rude," said Kathleen. "But I do get tired hearing him talk about his past."

"And he probably gets just as tired hearing you talk about the future," Joe retorted.

Lizzie brought Kathleen's breakfast. She gave the two young people a searching look, and was worried. It certainly didn't look to her like they were getting anywhere at all romantically. She went back to the kitchen, slowly shaking her head.

"Of course you know I was counting on taking you to the Country Club Saturday night," said Joe.

"Don't tell me you're going!" said Kathleen.

"I've got to," Joe said. "The editor wants me to attend the reception—since I'm to do reviews of the plays. He thinks the Chamber of Commerce's reception to the actors and actresses will give me a good chance to get acquainted."

"And you really thought of taking me—a stage-struck little country girl?"

"Sure. I can't think of anyone else I would rather take."

"Oh, there's other girls in Linville," said Kathleen, turning to her breakfast. "Girls who think the peak of happiness would be keeping house for a man like you."

"Thanks."

"Besides," Kathleen went on, how can you do your picketing, if you go to the dance?"

"I'd be willing to drop that for the evening," Joe answered. "I won't have to picket—when I've got you in my arms."

"In your—what?"

"Arms. Dancing, I mean." Joe leaned across the table. "Is it all settled—your going with DeMille?"

"Naturally!"

"I see. Mind if I cut in now and then?"

"Certainly not. Only don't make an idiot of yourself, please, if Fred DeMille and Paul Pennell break in on you."

"Oh, so you're counting on the leading man, too?"

"Of course, Paul Pennell has been very friendly toward me."

"I suppose you think that means he's dreaming of having you for his next leading lady."

"Maybe."

The Boss Calls

Lizzie came in again. "Mr. Joe," she said, "somebody wants you on the telephone now."

"Me?" said Joe. He jumped up. "Excuse me, honey," he said to Kathleen, giving her a quick kiss on top of the head as he passed.

It was the editor of the Linville Gazette calling.

"What's this I hear about you making a fool of yourself out there on Elm Street?" he said.

"You—you mean someone told you?" Joe stammered. "Gosh, news sure does spread fast in this town."

"No thanks to you," the editor snapped. "One of the printers just came in and told me he saw you marching back and forth in front of the Vaughan residence."

"Yes, sir. I—I just—that is, I—"

"Well, you get down here to the office at once," the editor cut in. "I hired you to write news, not make it."

"Yes, sir," said Joe.

Two receivers clicked back into their hooks.

Joe went back to the dining room feeling decidedly foolish.

Kathleen looked up. "Must have been sad news," she remarked, "judging from the look on your face."

"It was the boss," said Joe. "One of the darn-fool printers told him about me—and the picketing."

"You didn't expect to keep it a secret, did you?" Kathleen asked.

"No, only—oh, heck, forget it!" Joe stepped to Kathleen's side. "I'll see you Saturday night, if not before."

"Very well. I hope the boss won't be too hard on you."

"Oh, he won't!" said Joe, but not with too much assurance. "And listen, Kathleen—don't believe all that man tells you."

"What man?"

"Fred DeMille."

"Don't be silly. I wasn't born yesterday," Kathleen pushed back her chair. "You'd better hurry. You're awfully late already."

Russians Break Kharkov Defenses

London, May 16 (AP)—Sweeping across the Donets river on a 50-mile front, Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's mechanized Red Army was reported Friday night to have crashed through the inner defenses of Kharkov in at least two places driving the Germans before them.

Diplomatic sources in London said they had heard that Adolf Hitler was so taken aback by the unexpected power of the Soviet attack that he had instructed his ambassador at Tokyo to increase pressure on Japan for an attack on Russia.

The argument to Japan was said to be that Russia had concentrated so much on the European front that she could offer little resistance to an attack against Siberia.

Most of you have personally met F. Clair Ross or have heard him speak at one or more of the many meetings he has attended in Adams county in the interest of Democratic Victory.

This year it is essential, as former GOVERNOR EARLE said when he ENDORSED ROSS, that WE MUST ELECT A FIGHTING, DRIVING WAR GOVERNOR. ROSS IS THAT MAN.

Ross is the man the G. O. P. machine fears. They know he will win in November. Let's all join in Adams county and help to give ROSS and his running mates, KILROY, ACHTERMAN, LANDER, MUSMANNO and PEEL, a large majority.

The men on this ticket are Veterans—of World War I—and as able and highly qualified State Government Officials.

MONDAY AND TUESDAY

One of the most charming comedies of the season, Warner Bros. "The Male Animal," which plays at the Majestic Theatre next Monday and Tuesday, is a sparkling film that brings together three grand performers—Henry Fonda, Olivia de Havilland and Joan Leslie. It has a delightful story that will take you out of the realm of worry and trouble, with comedy that is both riotous and plausible.

WEDNESDAY

"The Vanishing Virginian," which will be seen at the Majestic next Wednesday, is a story of a typical American town and its people. The locale is Lynchburg, Virginia, and is the story of Cap'n Bob Yancey and his family. Heading the cast are Frank Morgan, Kathryn Grayson, Spring Byington, Douglass Newland and Dickie Jones.

THURSDAY

"Blondie's Blessed Event," latest in the fun-filled Columbia comedy series based upon Chic Young's popular cartoon strip, plays Wednesday at the Majestic Theatre. As its title implies, "Blondie's Blessed Event" is concerned with a little stranger in the Bumstead menage, a baby girl named Cookie. Cookie's forthcoming appearance was heralded in "Blondie Goes to College," the new film's equally delightful predecessor.

Friday and Saturday

Avast there, you moviegoing land-lubbers! "The Fleet's In!" Meaning, of course, that Paramount's tuneful new comedy drops anchor Friday at the Majestic theatre, bringing with it a crew of stars who have been cited numerous times for distinguished service in making us laugh and swing to swell rhythm.

Stars of "The Fleet's In" are Dorothy Lamour, William Holden and Eddie Bracken, a combination of talent that heralds plenty of romance, laughs and melody.

Gross receipts for admissions to motion picture theaters in Canada for the current year are well in excess of those for corresponding 1941 months, the Department of Commerce reports.
